WEST SIDE COUNCIL HOLDS SPECIAL SESSION

The first meeting of the board of trustees of the town of Las Vegas since June 2 was held in the council chamber on the West side Thursday night, the mayor and all members being present. It was a special session called by the mayor.

A petition was presented by property owners on Bridge street praying that a hydrant that obstructs the flow of water and banks up on the sidewalk, be moved to the sidewalk. It was ordered done with the permission of the Agua Pura company.

Reports of town officials were received and filed. They show the municipality to be in excellent condition, financially and every other way.

A thorough cleaning up of the West side was ordered. The town marshal was authorized to hire a team and wagon and employ county prisoners in the timely and necessary work on streets and alleys.

The Charles Hild company will be required to open a ditch which retards the passage of water through a culvert near its warehouses, also to complete a sidewalk that had been ordered put down some weeks ago. It was given ten days in which to make the improvement.

The clerk was instructed to procure a copy of the session laws of New Mexico for the guidance of the board.

A committee of three members which had been appointed to investigate a complaint filed by Demetrio Perez and Primitivo Escudero, being a plea for damages due to the opening of a street adjoining their premises, was granted more time to complete its work, so that justice might be done to all parties concerned; also a committee having in hand the straightening of Church street at its intersection with Valencia street was given further time in which to confer with interested property owners.

The clerk of the board was ordered to contribute $200 to the building fund of the E. Romero Hose and Fire company, as agreed to some weeks ago.

The board also voted to appropriate $14.25 a month for a period of three months to make up the amount necessary for the maintenance of street lights.

WANTED TO SEE HOW IT WAS

Youngster's idea Was to Emulate Feet of the Chickens.

Heien and Roger were staying with their grandparents. Although they were not exactly city children, yet there were enough new sights and sounds here to keep them busy asking questions and trying to find out for themselves.

The hens fascinated them a good deal.

At night they would peep into the henhouse and watch the row of nudged-up chickens balanced on the roosting poles.

"Aren't they funny?" said Roger, who was the younger of the two. "They look as if their heads had been pushed down into their bodies."

"I know it," said Heien. "But see their feet curled round the pole so tightly. I should think it would keep them awake, holding on so hard."

When Heien asked her father how it was the hens did not get tired out holding so tightly to the poles, he said: "Why, they do not have to hold on. When they sit down their claws shut up by themselves, and they can't fall off if they want to, without first standing up."

"How funny!" exclaimed Roger. "Next time you see a chicken walking," continued their father, "just notice that when she steps high, her claws close together the same way they do when she sits down. If you were like that you could perch on the back of a chair all night."

"My!" said Roger, as they reached the house. "Let me sit up and try it!"—Youth's Companion.

LITTLE MONEY FOR INVENTORS.

British Admiralty Niggardly in Its Rewards to Clever Workmen.

The lords of the British admiralty issued a circular to the officials of the various naval dockyards some time ago in which a system of payment for suggestions made by the workmen employed in all departments was introduced. This, it was hoped, would encourage the men, but the scheme is now practically defunct owing to the extraordinary parsimony of the admiralty officials.

The workmen manifested keenness in applying their minds to mechanical appliances for saving labor and cost, but after waiting for months received a few paltry dollars as their rewards. Some of the inventions are valuable and will save the country large sums of money, but in no case has any man received more than $25 for his ingenuity. The men complain that they have spent their spare time in patient study to receive in return grants which are ridiculous.

As an instance of the admiralty's niggardliness one man submitted an invention which enables a diver in difficulties under water to attach another air pipe and cut the pipe which is entangled in wreckage. Until this ingenious device was submitted such a thing was thought impossible. The admiralty officials adopted the idea and awarded the clever inventor the sum of $15.

If people with symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble could realize their danger they would without loss of time commence taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. This great remedy stops the pain and the irregularities, strengthens and builds up these organs and there is no danger of Bright's disease or other serious disorder. Do not disregard the early symptoms. O. G. Schaefer and Red Cross Drug Co.
